WHY NOT CAYLEY DISTRICT?

In another column it will be noticed that Macleod was fortunate enough in carrying off the majority of the prizes for their exhibit at the late Dry Farming exhibit held at Spokane, particularly in grain, taking both the 1st and second prizes, and in some cases the three prizes offered, in the different classes. This not only shows enterprise on the part of the citizens of Macleod, but it is one of the best paying advertising schemes that any town can get. It beats into a cocked-hat all outside fake advertising schemes propounded by out-side would-be publicity fakes who are hunting up suckers to take in their tempting baits, who do not care one red cent for a town's prosperity, only the dollars and cents they squeeze out of its citizens. All towns look alike to them.

But what is the matter with Cayley that she is not represented at these exhibits? We certainly can deliver the goods, but unfortunately we lack the pluck and enterprise—and, perhaps, we fear the expense.

There is no satisfactory reason in the world why we could not be as fortunate as Macleod in sending up an exhibit to these important exhibitions and meeting with as great a success. It would be one of the best paying propositions that Cayley can have. It will pay Macleod handsomely for the trouble and expense it has incurred, and it should be an incentive to Cayley to do likewise, and we trust some of our enterprising citizens and farmers will take it up another year. Isn't it one of the questions that our enterprising Board of Trade to take up with profit and pleasure? If so, we are sure it would be a certain success. We would be pleased to publish any communications on this important subject from any of our numerous readers bearing on the above. Let us hear from you.

EDUCATING THE CHILDREN.

You can't escape responsibility by ignoring the matter of educating your children. You don't want to. You think too much of them—besides you owe them an education. If you have one yourself you know why; if you have not you know why a good deal better—we value most the things we haven't got—health, education. You can render no greater service to your children, yourself, or the world than to see to it that the world is made better by you having lived. You can't render a better service than by sending into the world educated men and women—your boys and girls.

Crop Rotation in Dry Farming.

One of the most practical addresses at the Dry Farming Congress at Spokane was one on "Dry Farm Crop Rotation," by J. H. Sheppard, of Fargo, N. D. Successful dry land cropping requires frequent cultivation of the land—the dust blanket—either as an incident to the cultivation of corn, potatoes or root crops, or without a crop, and the adding and conservation of humus in the soil.

The conservation of moisture in dry land farming is an immediate necessity. The fertility will last for some time, and the weeds and insect pests are items of future contingency, but moisture conservation must begin when the soil is turned. Moisture a crop must have to produce at all, and it is a prime necessity on new as well as old land. Cultivated crops will bring this result in many districts.

Potatoes and root crops must be struck from the list of rotation crops in some districts, or special provision must be made against the drifting of the soil. Corn may not be a success in all dry land districts, and there may be some sections which cannot spare the moisture necessary to produce a cultivated crop. Where such conditions exist, the dry land farmer must adopt the summer tillage method so successfully followed in the Canadian northwest, a process of frequent tillage during the growing season, which will maintain a constant blanket over the entire surface, is a necessity in dry land culture. There is a special harrow with spade-like shovels which loosens the entire surface to a depth of three or four inches, which is especially adapted for maintaining a soil mulch. The machine is made in sections like a harrow, and can be fitted out for a two or four horse team, as the owner may desire.

The system of planning a variety cropping system for each individual field is right in principle and a safe rule in practice. Peculiarly enough it improves the soil conditions in a community. The mixed farmers remain longer in the neighborhood than those who grow a single crop is the universal experience in this country. Mixed farming gives a longer tenure of service for the hired help and thus enables the farmer to secure better class of hired men and women. It rids the community of the floating, careless, nobo help and brings in their stead a class of men who think while they work, and that alone will double their efficiency in producing results in a term of years.

Few farms are run to the best advantage which do not have two or more systems of cropping on them. The small fields near the buildings can be cropped to much better advantage by having them planned to suit the live stock needs than upon a basis of producing largely marketable crops. On the other hand, it is wasteful to put them into a system so permanent as not to take advantage of the heavier supply of manure and humus which the live stock add to the soil so regularly. The potato patch should be changed about through some minor rotation, for example, so that scabby potatoes will not be the rule, and so that the potato crop can have advantage of the manure where pasture crops have been fed off and where leguminous crops have been grown.

Grass and forage crops in a rotation are, in my opinion, prime necessities. A system should be devised which will produce maximum crops when the field is sown as the fixed charges against a field are very little increased for a heavy crop over those for an average crop, and the net returns may be doubled.

QUIET HOUR

Prayer

There is a valley paved with tears,
Whose gate my soul must pass,
And to dim sight it yet appears.
Darkly as through a glass,
More glorious than the day;
And all its tears are rainbow-bright,
When Calvary crowns the way.
Jesus, my Lord, within that vale
Thy footsteps still abide;
And can my heart grow faint or fail
When I have these to guide?
Thy track is left upon the sand
To point my way to Thee;
Thine echoes wake the silent land
To strains of melody.

What though the path be all unknown!
What though the way be drear!
Its shades I traverse not alone,
When steps of Thine are near.
Thy presence, ere it passed above,
Suffused thy desert air;
And left it burning there.
—George Matheson.

My Brother's Keeper

The greatest stumblingblock that we can put in the way of our brother is our inconsistent living. There are eyes fastened upon us of which we are in utter ignorance, and no one can be un-Christlike without causing some one to stumble; for while men are not reading God's written word they are reading us, who ought to be the exemplification of His incarnate Word. We are our brothers' keepers, whether we will or not, and for the way we use or abuse this privilege we shall be called to account. It is the Christian's part to "watch and pray," that he enter not into temptation, and to give evil a wide margin, not only for his own sake, but for his brother's also.

The Christian's Treasury

The one hundred and nineteenth Psalm is full of expressions of admiration, of respect and affection for God's Word. If the Psalmist, who had comparatively little of revelation, could be so thankful for what he possessed, how much more reason has the modern Christian for gratitude, who has not only more Scripture, but also more of commentary on the books of the sacred Word which has been accumulating in the centuries since the time of Christ. It would not be practicable for anyone now to write another one hundred and nineteenth Psalm, but the same spirit of unbounded faith in God's word

Rest to the Soul

Those who are weary and heavy laden in any sense, who are tired of the world and its falsity, and long for the truth; they who have consciences burdened by a sense of sin, and are ready to hear glad tidings, can hear them from Him. Only to such can the gospel be glad tidings or good news. Only to such can it give rest. Rest is just what such want, and He can give it to them, and will. It is rest to the soul. "This you will find in your experience: the peace that flows from free forgiveness, and a sense of justification through Christ. So that in Him—coming to Him, looking to Him, finding Him—men have rest.—Jacobus.

A splendid rain fell in this district on Monday. Things are looking up for those who have cattle and horses to run this winter.

Take the Cayley people and their entries from the High River Fair and what would there be left? All the first and second prizes.

Caspeil & Nablo received a carload of B.C. potatoes last Saturday, also a carload of Galt Coal. Now is the time to lay in your winter's supply.

If you have anything for sale, or if you want to buy anything, remember the best way to make your desires known is through the columns of the Hustler.

Caspeil & Nablo bought a fine team of grey drivers on Monday. They were purchased in Calgary. If the horses drive single they will no doubt pull many a couple.

Eleven carloads of cattle were shipped from Cayley last week. Altogether this year there has been close unto 2000 head of cattle shipped from this place. That is not such a bad showing for a dry year.

Of course the year 1910 was not up to the mark, as far as Southern Alberta years go, but no one would believe it by looking at the progress that is being made by Southern Alberta villages and towns.

Remember you can enjoy a first-class fowl supper and hear Miss Cissie Collard, the Welsh entertainer, sing and recite at the harvest home festival given by the ladies of the Cayley Methodist church on the evening of October 31st (Thanksgiving day), for the small fee of 25c, children 15c.

Hello, Cayley!

Did you know that the men working on the government telephone system are just finishing work west of the town and in all probability they will be working on the Cayley line in a few days?

Mr. Roberts, M.P.P., who has been constantly working to get the new road West started, has been successful, in that he has the surveyors at work. We hope with him that there will be no more delays and that the road will be pushed through this Fall.

John Snodgrass threshed his oats last week on his father's place east of Cayley. The average was 38 bushels, machine measure, but as it weighs 45 lbs. to the bushel, it will weigh out nearly 50 bushels. This is not bad for this year, but 45 lbs is a good grade any year.

The directors of the High River fair and all the people of the town who had any part in making the fair such a great success deserve much credit and praise. Although Cayley is not wealthy enough to have a fair like it, the farmers of this district have certainly the fowl, horses and cattle to win the prizes. We have been unable to get complete list of prizes but hope to for next issue.

A Bumper Crop Next Year

It is certain that there is more fall wheat in around here than ever before and with the start it has already, and the additional rain fall of this week, nothing short of a calamity will prevent us having bumper crop next year. Already land buyers are making enquiries and things point to a big revival in real estate in the early spring. Southern Alberta received a lot of valuable advertising at the Dry Farming Congress in Spokane, and will reap the reward next spring by having an influx of settlers never before experienced in this country, and there is no reason in the world why Cayley should not receive its full share of this great influx. We have the land and the crops, too.

Serious Closed

Sunday night closed the series of special evangelistic services which have been going on in the Cayley Methodist church for the last three weeks, under the leadership of Rev. Thos. Bell of Calgary. Although the people were busy, Mr. Bell was well pleased with the number who turned out night after night to hear his thoughtful and helpful sermons, and many are praising God that He sent His servant to this place. On Sunday night the church was full, and after the sermon a reception service was held, when several joined the church. A communion service was held at the close, to which a large number remained.

Remember the prayer service on Wednesday evening of this week at 8.15 sharp.
